Water bottle

- Check the shape and size of the water bottle as per requirement.
- Check whether the user can pour the water inside the bottle easily or not.
- Check the type of bottle – with a lid or without a lid.
- Check whether the bottle is designed with a sipper or without a sipper.
- Check whether the water bottle can hold water as per the volume specified in the requirements.
- Check whether the user can drink water from the bottle.
- Check whether the caps fit with the bottle or not.
- Check whether the water bottle stays stable on a flat surface.
- Check whether the water bottle can sustain the temperature of the water if it's a thermal water bottle.
- Check whether the water bottle is durable for a long time
- Check whether the colour of the water Bottle is as per the specification
- Check whether the brand name is seen on the water bottle.
- Check whether the brand logo is visible on the water bottle.
- Check whether the weight of the bottle is as per the specifications.
- Check whether the material of the water bottle is Plastic, steel, etc as expected.
- Check whether the bottle is disposable or reusable.
- Check whether the expiry date is mentioned or not.
- Check whether the water bottle is lightweight to carry.
- Check whether the designs get faded over time
- Check whether the water bottle is resistant to rust or mould if it's a stainless steel bottle.
- Check whether the water bottle is to clean.
- Check whether the water bottle doesn't leak when placed upside down.
- Check whether the user can hold the water bottle comfortably.
- Check whether there is any chemical change in the water after keeping it in the bottle, and check whether the bottle is safe to be consumed as drinking water.
- Check whether the bottle is made up of material, which is recyclable.
- Check whether the bottle can also be used to hold other common household things like honey, fruit juice etc.
- Check whether the bottle cap can be closed with thread or directly fixed into the bottle.

- Check whether the water bottle is easy to carry anywhere.
- Check whether the water bottle is safe for children (glass bottles are not safe for children)